Sportsmen's Outing This Week-End

Fish Lake To Be Scene Of First Annual Gathering

More than 3000 sportsmen are expected to gather at Fish Lake on Saturday and Sunday, August 28 and 29, for the first annual outing of the Utah State Sportsmen's association according to Harold B. Makin, president of the association, and C. E. Evans, secretary.

Although recreational features will predominate the two day program, a short business session will be held at Skougard's Tavern at 2 P. M. Saturday, with President Makin presiding. This meeting is considered important as subjects of vital interest to the sporting public will be discussed and probably resolutions passed expressing the attitude of the group.

The meeting, however, will be a departure from past procedure inasmuch as speakers have been assigned subjects for short talks after which open discussion will be held. The idea is that the meeting will be far more interesting and more sportsmen will have the opportunity to express their personal views. No long talks will be permitted, nor will anyone be permitted to prolong arguments not directly connected with any subject up for discussion.

Newell B. Cook, state fish and game commissioner, will be the first speaker after President Makin has delivered a short address of welcome. Mr. Cook will discuss our welcome. He will discuss "Our Range and Fish Problems."

The important topic of "The Legal and Illegal Killing of Doe Deer" has been assigned to Frank G. Martines, president of the Sevier County Fish and Game Protective association, who has made quite a study of range conditions and the

Richfield Plans Kow Kounty Karnival

Many Attractions To Be Seen At Sevier Celebration

RICHFIELD — With a program calling for more than $6000 in prizes, the Kow Kounty Karnival, sponsored by the Sevier County Fair Association, promises to be one of the most successful and attractive celebrations in Southern Utah this year. It will be held at Richfield on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 9, 10, and 11.

Arrangements have already been completed for the major parts of the three-day celebration to include the usual fair exhibits in the mornings, horse races in the afternoons and a rodeo under the new flood light system at night.

To make all parts of the events interesting to the public as well as to the contestants, Clariton Seegmiller, fair board president and D. H. Whittenburg, carnival manager, have set up a budget which includes approximately $3000 in prize money for fair exhibits, $1600 for the three days of racing, and more than $1500 for the rodeo performers. Besides this seven specialty entertainment numbers have been signed to perform both during the afternoon and between acts of the rodeo program.

In preparation for the celebration the fair grounds is being completely renovated. A new grand stand and bleachers have been constructed that will comfortably seat 4000 people. The rodeo arena is now being built under the supervision of these Colborr and Sorenson company, which will put on the night shows.

The race track has been resurfaced and the turns banked so that horsemen say it is now one of the fastest tracks in the state. Spurs

TO INSPECT PEACH ORCHARDS OF UTAH

LOGAN — In the hope of avoiding the severe losses to peach growers and consumers caused by winterkilling of the peach blossom buds such as occurred this year with resultant scarcity and high prices for this favorite fruit, horticulturists of the Utah State Agricultural college are issuing a call for peach growers to be on the lookout for trees of the Elberta and Hale type which show by their heavy cropping this year that they may be budsports with buds which are better able to stand the sub-zero weather of Utah test winters than the ordinary trees of these varieties. Such trees or strains should be reported without delay to the County Agricultural Agent so they may be inspected and propagated for testing purposes before the fruit is harvested and the budding season over, according to Professor F. M. Coe, Associate Horticulturist of the Utah State Agricultural College Experiment Station, and Dr. A. L. Stark, Horticulturist of the Extension Service, who are conducting the search for hardier peaches.

Sportsmen feel it imperative that the deer herd be protected because they are becoming part of a major industry, and there is a possibility that when the Big Game Control Board meets early in September, it will recommend an open season on female deer. This would be disastrous to the herd, according to the arguments of some members of the sportsmen's association.

Because all fishermen of the state are interested in the welfare of Fish Lake, State Senator Silas E. Tanner of Loa will talk on "How We Feel About Fish Resources of Sevier and Wayne Counties."

Other speakers will include Elmi Bernardi, Senator Dexter Farr, Hugh Colton, Dr. D. I. Rasmussen and Ranger Elbert L. Cox.

At the conclusion of the afternoon meeting, the visitors will be at liberty to fish or participate in other forms of recreation. The management of Skougards Tavern has agreed to donate the use of the hall if the money is used for this purpose.

Among other things to be enjoyed Sunday will be trap shooting, fishing, boating and plenty of time for reminiscing and telling of the big fish caught and game killed.

Club Members Enjoy Annual Outing

200 Attend 4-H Club Gathering at Camp Dadandson

Approximately 200 4-H club members and leaders from Silver City, Mona, Levan and Nephi attended the Annual Club Outing which was held at Camp Dadandson last Friday. After dinner, Co. Agricultural Agent A. E. Smith led the group in relays and games. A treasurer hunt was then conducted, whereby four groups were led through barbed-wire fences, burrs and water. After a good hike they discovered that all-day suckers had been tucked under oak trees and in creek beds.

After the evening meal, a huge campfire was built, and as the 4-H club boys and girls gathered near the fire, their voices were raised in club songs. Afton Garrett, a club leader, led the group in community singing after which County Agent Smith took charge of the program. Stunts were given by the various groups, and prizes were awarded as follows — The first year sewing club of Nephi under the leadership of Ida Wilson and Grace Powell won the 4-H flag presented for having prepared the best stunt. The Silver City Home Science club won the prize for having come the longest distance.

Five clubs had 100 per cent of their members at the outing and were awarded 4-H buttons. The five clubs are: First year clothing club of Mona under the leadership of Erma Keyte and LaVon Rowe; First year clothing club of Levan under the direction of Phyllis Francum and Sara Aagard; Home Science club of Silver City with Mrs. Madeline Wheeler as leader; first year forestry boys of Nephi with Maurice Chapman as leader; first year clothing group of Nephi with Geraldine Bowles and Grace Blackett as leaders.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Conover and children of Salt Lake City spent the week end in Nephi at the home of Mrs. T. H. G. Parkes. Miss Margaret Parkes returned to Salt Lake City with them for a visit.

Many Parts of World

It is gratifying to know that Nephi continues to have a magnetic attraction for her native sons and daughters, who, for business reasons, have moved to other cities. These former residents always seem happy to get back whenever an opportunity permits.

Among the many former Nephtes who have visited Nephi this summer are Val Hoyt and his wife, Helen. Val is returning to the Brigham Young University, he says to make his home permanently in Utah. He always shows an abiding interest in the welfare of his native city and frequently expresses a desire to live here, if work permitted. Val is one who should know a good place to live when he sees it, for along with the best of education it is possible to get, and practical experience living in many places, he has traveled almost all over the world.

Val was graduated in electrical engineering from Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, and for some years was assistant engineer for the Idaho Power and Light Co. From there he went to Harvard University and was graduated with a master's degree in business administration. He later went to Stanford University and got a doctorate in business. In fact he is one of the few people who hold doctorates in business administration.

He has had extensive experience both in practical fields and in teaching. In addition to his electrical engineering experience, he worked for several years for a New York firm of industrial engineers who sent him from factory to factory installing modern business and production methods. In 1920 he returned to Utah to cast his lot here. After a year as production manager for the J. G. McDonald Chocolate Co., president Harris got him to go to the Brigham Young University to organize and be the dean of the School of Commerce.

After ten years at the Brigham Young University he left Provo to go to Oregon. The first year he was dean of the Oregon State College School of Commerce and for five years after that was the dean and director of the schools of business at both the Oregon State College and the University of Oregon.

Many of the summers during his work as a teacher he was employed by eastern firms to modernize their methods. The past year he has been in Philadelphia as assistant to the President and the production manager of J. S. Ivins and Son, Inc., a large manufacturer of cookies, cakes and crackers. His work and study has taken him to China and Japan on two occasions and to practically every country in Europe. This summer he and his wife and niece, Lucille Fowkes have been to the British West Indies and to South America.

He expresses himself as being immensely glad at the prospects of returning to Utah permanently even though he has many attractions in other parts of the United States.

One of the interesting parts of his trip was a visit he made to the Angelus Temple in Los Angeles, where he enjoyed a sermon given by the famous Amie Semple McPherson. The Temple was crowded to capacity the night Mr. Sells was present, and the evangelist address was dramatized and was very interesting.
